Judith H. Winston joined Tollefson Bradley in 2019, resuming a 25-plus-year legal career in insurance coverage after overseeing a family business for several years. Judy has acted as coverage counsel for insurance companies in litigation and non-litigation matters, advising on primary and excess coverage and litigation management issues, rendering coverage opinions and handling litigation matters in trial courts and at the appellate level. In addition to her work in the insurance and appellate sections of Dallas firms known for coverage expertise, she has worked in-house for two insurance companies, where her responsibilities included advising claims handlers on issues arising in any of the 50 states, as well as consulting with product developers on new insurance policies, directing insurance litigation, and developing and teaching seminars for adjusters throughout the country on claims handling, issue identification and coverage letter drafting.

Judy's experience includes analysis of coverage issues in the areas of general liability, person and commercial auto and trucking liability, professional liability, errors and omissions, commercial property, employers' liability, employee benefits and specialty programs, among others.
